Applications now being accepted for Deputy Chief of Police for the Ottawa Police Service, Two Vacancies

(Ottawa) – Starting today, interested applicants can submit their applications to become a Deputy Chief with the Ottawa Police Service (OPS). The Board is currently looking to fill two vacancies. The opportunity is advertised through the Odgers Berndtson website, the firm retained by the Police Services Board to run the search.

“The Board is coming off the heels of hiring our new Chief of Police, Eric Stubbs, last October. Earlier this year, Deputy Chief Steve Bell assumed the responsibilities of the Chief Administrative Officer role, following the retirement of Blair Dunker,” stated Board Chair Suzanne Valiquet. “I think this recruitment presents a really exciting opportunity for policing leaders out there to come forward and be a part of the new Command Team at the Ottawa Police Service.”

Applications will be accepted until March 6, 2023. The Board is planning to hold interviews at the end of March/early April.

To be considered for this position, please submit your cover letter, resume and related information to margaret.campbell@odgersberndtson.com or through the links above.

The Ottawa Police Services Board is the civilian body responsible for governing the Ottawa Police Service. It is responsible for ensuring the provision of adequate and effective police services to the City of Ottawa’s residents.
